

Financial Incentives: From time to time we offer consumers who provide their email address, phone number and/or zip code to us for the purpose of receiving our marketing or clienteling communications free shipping, or sometimes a discount on an order. Consumers may opt in by entering their information when prompted upon first visiting our website. Consumers may opt out of marketing or clienteling communications at any time by following the instructions in such communications. Consumers may also exercise their rights at any time by emailing privacy@tapestry.com. The financial incentive is permitted because it is not discriminatory in nature—it does not deny consumers their rights or discriminate against consumers who may have exercised their rights under US State Privacy Laws. When we provide the financial incentive, the price or difference calculated by the free shipping and/or order discounts is reasonably related to the value of the data you provide to us as our customer.